There has been much discussion and theorizing recently about what makes a city or community truly creative. Dodolab would like to take advantage of the fact that the ICASF Colloquium has brought together a socially and creatively engaged group who can help us consider this question in a way that is focused and collaborative.

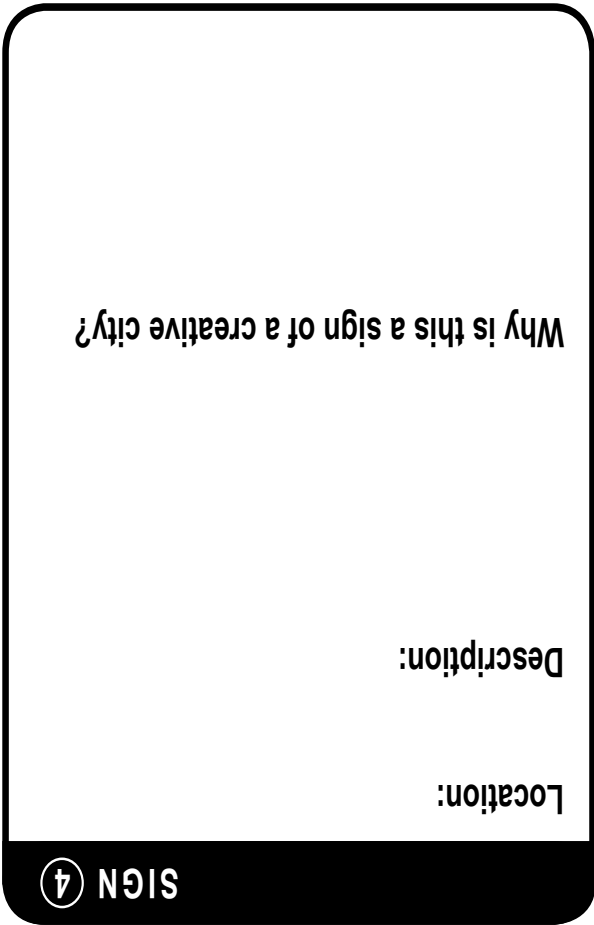

Our request is simple. While in Guelph for the colloquium and Jazz Festival, please use this eBook to describe and identify the locations of four signs of a creative city. Signs could be buildings, design features, amenities, facilities, even people. We've included a map of the core of Guelph so you can mark your sites there as well. Please return your eBook to the Dodolab at the Macdonald Stewart Art Centre at the end of the colloquium on Friday, September 11.

We'll be using these eBooks as guidebooks to photograph the city and will be producing a collaborative photo essay that will be made available online as a slide show and in a series of eBooks that can be downloaded and shared. We'd appreciate it if you'd include your name and email address below so we can let you know when the photo essays are available to view and download. If you forget to drop off this eBook, please mail it or scan and email it to us at:
