

Robert Janz work documented by The Ting, c. 1974, The Theatre of Mistakes Archive

Lost Farm
Longhi, Pietro

London Film Makers Co-op

London Exhibition

London Calling

Line
Letters

Leick, Gwendolyn

Legacy

Lecture Performance

Lansley, Jacky

U
O
I S
F
I
P

An A-Z of The Ting: Theatre of Mistakes – L

Marie-Anne Mancio

rate of expansion

Rectangle may only expand when number of performers make an expansion possible however the rectangle shape of the expanded rectangle should tend towards the proportions of the original.

Diagram relating to The Street in The Theatre of Mistakes Archive, nd, c.1975

2009-09-03

Published by Proboscis
C Marie-Anne Mancio & contributors 2009

Part of Proboscis' Diffusion Residency Programme

<http://proboscis.org.uk> | <http://diffusion.org.uk>
www.bookleteer.com

made with Diffusion Generator by

i) The theorising of British Performance/live art as a discipline was still in its infancy in the mid-90s, so was not present to anything like the same extent in the 70s and 80s. At the time of writing Maps for Wayward Performers: (Marie-Anne Mancio, unpublished DPhil thesis, University of Sussex, 1996), for example, the majority of literature had a strong American bias and prospective publishers were concerned that British work was not as marketable.

Legacy
The exercises from the Gymnasium, used in Ting/The Theatre of Mistakes workshops and then collated by Anthony Howell and Fiona Templeton in Elements of Performance Art, were the basis of instruction by live art practitioners in the devising of performances throughout the 1980s in institutions such as Dartington and Manchester Metropolitan University. Howell's former post as Senior Lecturer in Time Based Studies at University of Wales, Cardiff Institute and Templeton and Stickland's current academic roles at Brunel University and Chelsea School of Art respectively saw their influence extend into the 1990s. That the legacy of The Theatre of Mistakes has not been sufficiently analysed is due to several factors:

Lecture Performance
First performed Sunday 23rd November 1975 at the Roundhouse, Camden by: Charlotte Crozet, Mikey Greenall, Anthony Howell, Marita Ludlum, Julian Maynard Smith, Lindsay Moran, Miranda Payne, Eilan Reichel, Fiona Templeton

Lansley, Jacky See: Dance
Gave a lecture-demonstration at the Art Room.

The Ting: Theatre of Mistakes

an A-Z

L

Marie-Anne Mancio

(85)

2 p.m.

'I think we should find him some clothes,' said Dorothy. She sat next to Monika on her pink towel by the poolside. Monika was fully dressed, while Dorothy still wore her costume. Behind them, Derek remained naked, and the younger dalmatian lay outstretched in the shade beneath the deck-chair. 'Where are his own?' asked Monika. 'I put them in Judith's bath.' 'Then they can go through the washing-machine - though after I have finished with the wash.' 'Yes. In the meantime, what can he wear?' 'I will have to find him something from Vyvan's clothes,' Monika concluded. 'Two dragonflies were hovering over the pool. She glanced down at her masking-tape-banded palms. Carefully. She pushed both hands, she raised a mug of tea to her lips. Dorothy, pushed at the crescent in her nails. Over the rose-bordered fence, at the far end of the lawn below the terrace, Lavinia sat on the children's swing. She was still wearing her bikini, and only her back was visible beneath the overhanging branches of the gnarled apple tree on the other side of the fence. Beyond the paddock sloping away in front of her, mares and foals were drifting past, tearing at grass and whisking tails in the large field beyond.

'At what time will the guests arrive?' Dorothy asked. 'How should I know? In time for tonight's performance, I suppose.' Monika sighed. 'Ach, it is so annoying now. I wanted to be gone from here tonight. I hate it that the house has fallen through. I do not in the least enjoy these parties.'

'Why is that?' asked Dorothy. 'Monika raised her shoulders. 'Because it feels so empty to me. The endless chat about art, you know. Always the same faces. We have all heard it before.'

'I disagree,' said Dorothy brightly. 'Something new might well turn up.' She smiled and nodded her head. 'But what is it for, to live in hope? Why should all this

Notes on Lecture Performance

©The Theatre of Mistakes, The Theatre of Mistakes Archive

Discuss with those sitting next to you the identity of "the winner" until no chair is isolated from the emergent series of chairs. When you wish to depart from the lecture performance, having placed your chair so that it is directly touching another chair, clap once, then twice, then three times and so on up to twenty times. Then leave your chair in its position in the series and, continuing to obey the laws of speed and height whilst turning only at right angles, make your way towards the exit.

Sit down and remain seated, whether or not another person places a chair so that it is also directly touching your own. Discuss with those sitting next to you the identity of "the winner" until no chair is isolated from the emergent series of chairs. When you wish to depart from the lecture performance, having placed your chair so that it is directly touching another chair, clap once, then twice, then three times and so on up to twenty times. Then leave your chair in its position in the series and, continuing to obey the laws of speed and height whilst turning only at right angles, make your way towards the exit.

Progress between as many chairs as you wish. Then sit down and remain seated until you have identified the first set of touching chairs that becomes apparent in the room. Move your own chair so that it is directly touching only one of these chairs.

Exchange your method of moving and exchange your choice of empty chair.

If touched while moving between chairs: freeze all parts of your body except your mouth while you describe to each other your method of moving and describe the empty chair you were heading towards before touching.

Describe aloud every move you make—unless seated in a chair. If a chair becomes occupied while you are progressing towards it, reverse your progress back to the chair you vacated: should somebody be seated in that chair as well continue progressing backwards and forwards between the occupied chairs until one or the other becomes empty again.

Aim to separate all empty chairs that seem too close together—always obeying the performance laws.

If a chair becomes occupied while you are progressing towards it, reverse your progress back to the chair you vacated: should somebody be seated in that chair as well continue progressing backwards and forwards between the occupied chairs until one or the other becomes empty again.

Describe aloud every move you make—unless seated in a chair. If touched while moving between chairs: freeze all parts of your body except your mouth while you describe to each other your method of moving and describe the empty chair you were heading towards before touching.

Exchange your method of moving and exchange your choice of empty chair.

Progress between as many chairs as you wish. Then sit down and remain seated until you have identified the first set of touching chairs that becomes apparent in the room. Move your own chair so that it is directly touching only one of these chairs.

Sit down and remain seated, whether or not another person places a chair so that it is also directly touching your own. Discuss with those sitting next to you the identity of "the winner" until no chair is isolated from the emergent series of chairs. When you wish to depart from the lecture performance, having placed your chair so that it is directly touching another chair, clap once, then twice, then three times and so on up to twenty times. Then leave your chair in its position in the series and, continuing to obey the laws of speed and height whilst turning only at right angles, make your way towards the exit.

London Film

AN MC

JC

THE LECTURE PERFORMANCE

On first sitting down, read the instructions once to yourself, and then as many times aloud as you wish.

Sitting in a chair provides immunity from all performance laws. However, the space in which you are now seated will turn into as much of a performance area as anywhere else once the reading of instructions becomes either inaudible or confused: at that point, therefore, move your chair as far as possible from any other chair and sit down.

Whilst moving, obey the laws of speed and height shown on the diagram and displayed at the corners of this room.

If anyone approaches with another chair while you are seated get up and move your chair again: an isolated position will be the best vantage point from which to see and hear the rest of the lecture performance. Do not sit against the walls as the wallspace may also be used.

Having sat down in a new position, remain seated. While seated you may turn your head once from one side to the other each time you see someone turn theirs. By so doing, choose an empty chair of which you have an uninterrupted view. Remaining seated, think of a method of progress which allows you to move from your own chair to the empty one while obeying the laws of speed and height.

Progress towards the empty chair. If you reach it while it is still unoccupied sit down and remain seated until you have chosen another chair to progress towards and another method of moving according to the laws of speed and height.

However, if you consider that the chair you have just reached is not positioned as far as possible from any other chair move it to another position until it is as far as possible from any other—then sit down.

See also: Lost Farm

(ed.) The Babylonian World, Routledge, 2007.

photographer and author of:
history faculty at Chelsea School of Art, Leick is also a anthropologist, and currently part of the research staff in the art Mistakes' European tour. A Doctor of Philosophy, an farm around the time of Opheus and Hermes and The Theatre of Former partner of Anthony Howell who was resident at Purdies

Leick, Gwendolyn

Anthony Howell is also investigating participation, through tango.

Julian Maynard Smith claims working with The Theatre of Mistakes showed him an oppositional way of working.

Peter Stickland has continued his investigations into narrative and structures.

Andrew Eden's Shared View (1985) and his later collaborations with Susan Bonvin were developments of explorations carried out at Purdies and in Summer Pieces.

Fiona Templeton's practice displays an ongoing interest in audiences and participation.

(Response to Questionnaire, December 2008)

Memory work I was doing in the early 70s."
kind and inspiring about the fragmented writing/Rituals of feeling for where everyone was. Also, I remember Anthony being real sense of presence/awareness. You would really develop a

ii) Performance, Live Art, and the short-lived Hybrid magazines – in which UK performances were reviewed and discussed – were established in 1979, 1993, and 2002 respectively by which time The Theatre of Mistakes had performed most or their works or disbanded.

iii) Anthony Howell established Greysuit (1993-5), a video magazine with an interdisciplinary bias. However, apart from Going (which Howell was reluctant to show because he felt it did not do the work justice) and later versions of Waterfall,
The Theatre of Mistakes' work pre-dates the eponymous use of video as a medium of documentation.

iv) The Theatre of Mistakes Archive is not currently available to the public and has only recently been catalogued which may have deterred researchers.

Despite the mass of other documentation (including an excellent sound recording of Going – see Bibliography), held by The Theatre of Mistakes, it was the next generations of performance collectives – Station House Opera, Forced Entertainment – who have been able to take advantage of video; the internet; the growth in performance criticism and performance making as academic disciplines; the platforms pioneered by the National Review of Live Art, New Moves, and the Live Art Development
Agency to write themselves into the history books.

Involvement with Ting: The Theatre of Mistakes influenced practitioners:

Pat Murphy says: "I would say that the Ting was very important to how my work evolved. I still use some of the early Ting exercises when working with students, or rehearsing with actors. These exercises – and indeed the performances were characterized by a

Lost Farm
See also: Deborah Howell, Gwendolyn Leick, Opheus and Hermes, Julian Maynard Smith, Miranda Payne Anthony Howell's unpublished novel compresses the events of a decade at the farm into one day. It seeks to show action without becoming embroiled in any of the internal thought processes of its

Pietro Longhi: The Quack (1757)

Program Notes: The Theatre of Mistakes Homage to Pietro Longhi (Nov 1976)

Scenes at a Table is dedicated to the painter Pietro Longhi (1702-1785), whose many variations on a single theme or a single posture, reappearing in dozens of his works, have been a source of inspiration to the company during the year. A number of the ideas exercised by the performers have been derived either from Longhi's use of similar angles in figure drawing or from his employment of eye glances as a geometry by which to establish the focal centre of a picture. Originally, several of Longhi's paintings were inspired by scenes at tables in the performances of 18th century Venice.

Longhi, Pietro (1702-1785)

characters. Together with photographs and participants' memories, it conjures up a vision of Purdies.

Draft Lost Farm ©Anthony Howell

London Film Makers Co-op

"A loose group of friends and colleagues, many recently out of art school, who were interested in filmmaking and began to work together. The Co-op was based in the old Camden Town dairy, and in retrospect what was so important was that there was film production going on as well as exhibition and distribution. So work was made, printed, screened, argued about, and an aesthetic emerged. Perhaps a number of aesthetics: structural-materialist film, landscape film, expanded cinema, and so on. It was a very productive situation for those who were part of it. The filmmaking culture was at the time a related but parallel universe to that of the art world, though they did overlap at certain moments" (Julia Peyton-Jones and Hans Ulrich Obrist, Interview with Anthony McCall, New York, September 2007)

According to Anthony McCall, Anthony Howell was a member by adoption. (Interview: Anthony McCall, Jason E Bowman, Marie-Anne Mancio, London, 26th Sept, 2008)

"The hardcore 'structural / materialist' filmmaking that characterised much of the work produced at the LFMC in the early 1970s can be very challenging for the viewer. Anyone wandering in from the street, with the expectations of commercial (they used to call it "dominant") cinema would not understand these films at all. Not only is there no narrative, but there's most likely no people, no sound, no editing and sometimes no discernible imagery at all [...] British work was much more loosely contrived [than US structuralism], and really concerned with the raw physicality of the film medium and the inherent properties of the celluloid strip."

(Mark Webber "Shoot Shoot Shoot" http://www.luxonline.org.uk/tours/shoot_shoot_shoot\(7\).html.html))

View: Valerie Export who was there circa 1972.

List of letters

31-Mar-73 Anthony McCall to AH
12-Dec-73 ? to AH
05-Dec-73 George Mattingly to AH re The Hour Book

(Extracts of letters in The Theatre of Mistakes Archive)

dear anthony - I began to write one day in the morning and I was a great success! and that one of the words in hind-bengal-urdu...maybe it will all abutary for the dubious benefit of gaining a few name--have definitely lost 50% of my english voc- that you art show project (and remember correct post card)

I'm up to my eyes with reading at the moment - authors seem to have delivered commissioned books all together - but I've taken time off to look at the manuscript of ELEMENTS OF PERFORMANCE ART which you left in here.

Certainly this could make an interesting book but once again I regret to say I don't rightly or wrongly see it as something which an educational publisher would regard as something which they could sell well as to whether any publisher would in fact in the present extremely difficult climate make an offer.

anyway - I guess it extends even to all's dead and gone

I hope they'll like. Have also given David 2 pages for Wallp mag which I noted in a column I have in a French mag. If end 5th March, 1976

Dear Anthony,

The Theatre of Mistakes Archive contains many letters, postcards, aerogrammes, typed, illustrated, hand-written... to and from friends and business associates including: Anthony McCall, Susan Hiller, The Arts Council, literary agent Giles Gordon, poet John Welch...

Of the painter Barnett Newman who loved to write vitrollic letters. However Newman never sent his.

Apart from its greater complexity there is another point which makes viewing as part of an organised group different from viewing casually with a few friends and that is the shared view now lasts a definite length of time, instead of tending to appear as a series of glimpses.

4. George's pole leaps over Jack's.

5. Jane and John swing their poles round the other side of the room to pass George, Sally and Jack's poles.

6. Each encounter involved a different pair of persons and so the problem of passing was solved differently. The plan was constant but the action was varied.

Andrew Eden Shared View (1985) exhib. catalogue

Now get this
London calling, yes, I was there, too
An' you know what they said? Well, some of it was true!
London calling at the top of the dial
And after all this, won't you give me a smile?

CHORUS x2
The ice age is coming, the sun's zooming in Engines stop running, the wheat is growing thin
A nuclear error, but I have no fear
Cause London is drowning and I, I live by the river

London calling to the imitation zone
Forget it, brother, you can go at it alone
London calling to the zombies of death
Quit holding out - and draw another breath
London calling - and I don't wanna shout
But while we were talking I saw you nodding out
London calling, see we ain't got no high
Except for that one with the yellowy eyes

CHORUS
The ice age is coming, the sun's zooming in Melted down expected, the wheat is growing thin
Engines stop running, but I have no fear
Cause London is drowning and I, I live by the river

London calling to the faraway towns
Now war is declared - and battle come down
London calling to the underworld
Come out of the cupboard, you boys and girls
London calling, now don't look to us
Phoney Beatlemania has bitten the dust
London calling, see we ain't got no swing
Cept for the ring of that truncheon thing

1. Song by The Clash London Calling

London Calling

I never felt so much alike, like-a, like-a...

2. See: Fiver Show

London Exhibition (Covent Garden, October 1975)

See also: Waterfall

The Theatre of Mistakes at the London Exhibition
©The Theatre of Mistakes, The Theatre of Mistakes Archive

Three Act Piece by 'The Ting: Theatre of Mistakes' was performed at the London Exhibition in 1975 as part of their Five Concert Pieces and a Free Session.

nd Susan Bonvin? to AH re Wallpaper and Fiver Show
09-Jan-76 Giles Gordon to AH
03-May-76 Typed Invoice University of Wisconsin Wallpaper
02-Jun-76 Maidstone College Library to AH
re unreturned library book on Longhi!
nd GLA re financial assistance
nd Susan Hiller to AH
nd John Welch to AH, FT and Ting re Slade nd Susan Bonvin to AH re Ting
nd Graham Snow to AH
23-Mar-76 Sue Grayson at Serpentine to AH re Summer Show
17-Feb-76 Anthony McCall on Manifesto of Mutual Art
16-Aug-77 AH to BBC re Waterfall
17-Aug-77 Reply to above
19-Aug-77 AH to BBC re Waterfall
23-Aug-77 reply to above
01-Sep-77 AH reply to above
05-Oct-78 Henry Meyric Hughes, British Council
16-Nov-78 Ray Smith, Uni of Southampton to AH
31-Aug-78 Don Marinelli, Uni of Pittsburgh to AH
01-Dec-78 Andrew Dempsey, London Exhibition
19-Oct-78 Ron Padgett, Poetry Project to AH
20-Oct-78 Henry Meyric Hughes, British Council to AH
30-Nov-10 Box office receipts Going Theater for the New City
Dec-78
28-Nov-78 Paul A Rolin to Dr Katz re Going (prison)
12-Sep-78 Douglas Baxter to AH re PC Gallery Nov 11
17-Aug-79 Peter Bird ACE to AH
18-Dec-84 Lady Lodge Arts Centre to AE, h/w note AE to AH

10-Sep-74 Richard and Philippa Quarrell to AH and SH
07-Sep-74 Anthony McCall to AH and SH
08-Oct-74 Marion Boyars to AH re Wallpaper
15-Apr-74 Anthony McCall to AH
23-Jun-74 Anthony McCall to AH re Wallpaper
17-Nov-74 Richard Quarrell to AH
nd Susan Bonvin to AH re Device for Looking at Landscape nd Postcard unsigned (AM?) to Ting nd Sylvia re Ting and masks nd Susan Hiller to AH re Dreams
nd Christopher Hobbs and John White [bio]
16-Nov-75 Pippa, Emma and Dix to AH
18-Mar-75 Abrul Hadi to AH and SLH
nd Susan Hiller to SLH
31-Mar-75 David Coxhead
17-Aug-75 Tom Lowenstein? To AH
nd Michael Karl Ritchie to AH
nd Graham Snow to AH re Ting
20-Oct-75 Michael Greenall to ? Wales
14-Jun-75 Carlyle Reedy to AH re The Street rehearsals
30-Aug-75 AH to Adrian re Philipppines
27-Nov-75 Bill Shepherd to AH re Ting and Wallpaper
Nd AH to ? re contribution for Fiver Show
Nd AH to Keith Burgess? - re Fiver Show
Nd AH to Anthony McCall - re Fiver Show
01-May-76 Paul Buck to AH
05-Mar-76 Giles Gordon to AH re Elements
nd Susan Bonvin to AH re Amanda Welch work

Photo: ©The Theatre of Mistakes, The Theatre of Mistakes Archive
Mickey Greenall and Fiona Templeton in Head Turns

Line

01-Jun-85 AE to AH

See also: Rape of the Mind (1978) the text of which is composed from letters Anthony Howell had written/received.

VANESSA POETRY MAGAZINE
THE MANY PRESS

Thursday evening

Dear Anthony, Fiona + Ting -

Just to say I did enjoy the slide performance, and wish I could have stayed longer. Anyway many thanks. And perhaps I may have a third piece to show for it.

Extract from letter by John Welch (see Poetry) to Anthony Howell, 1976. The pieces referred to would have been Welch's poems inspired by Ting performances.