The Tongue Conceals Time: Emergent Poems

Shae Davidson

SRD

These poems and tales grew from magazine ads and celebrity gossip, human interest news and pop culture. Fragments and words swirled together until phrases emerged and organized themselves, taking on lives of their own.

This is what I was trying to remember . . .

Light on one's feet,
you will arrive
ready to slice and enjoy.
We envy
your inner landscape,
packed with love
like a loaf of Russian bread
