

The Accidental Menagerie Book Two

Andrew & Maggie Hunter

London's Royal Zoological Gardens were opened in Regent's Park in 1828 with, among other animals, monkeys, bears, emus, kangaroos, llamas, zebras and turtles. There were 30,000 visitors within the first seven months. Whips had to be left at the gate, but ladies, who were allowed to keep their parasols, had to be restrained from poking them through the bars. Jumbo the elephant arrived in 1867. (Source: The London Encyclopedia, Edited by Ben Wienreb and Christopher Hibbert, Macmillan, 1983)

The Accidental Menagerie Book Two
Andrew & Maggie Hunter
created on: Fri Oct 19 08:08:26 2007
www.diffusion.org.uk
DIFFUSION eBooks are designed to be freely available to download, print out and share.

Being a collection of images compiled by the artist with his daughter while wandering about London and its environs in search of beasts on November 26th and 27th, 2007. The reader should note that this is by no means a complete archive of the creatures observed.

26 57

5 9

