

NIGHT

The sun descending in the West,
The evening star does shine;
The birds are silent in their nest,
And I must seek for mine.

The moon, like a flower
In heaven's high bower,
With silent delight,
Sits and smiles on the night.

Farewell, green fields and happy groves,
Where flocks have took delight,
Where lambs have nibbled, silent moves
The feet of angels bright;
Unseen, they pour blessing,
And joy without ceasing,
On each bud and blossom,
And each sleeping bosom.

They look in every thoughtless nest
Where birds are covered warm;
They visit caves of every beast,
To keep them all from harm:
If they see any weeping
That should have been sleeping,
They pour sleep on their head,

your door.

Then cherish pity, lest you drive an angel from

of the poor.

Beneath them sit the aged men, wise guardians heaven among:

Or like harmonious thunderings the seats of voice of song,

Now like a mighty wind they raise to heaven the innocent hands.

Thousands of little boys and girls raising their
of lambs,

The hum of multitudes was there, but multitudes
their own.

Seated in companies they sit, with radiance all
London town!

O what a multitude they seemed, these flowers of waters flow.

Till into the high dome of Paul's they like Thames
as white as snow,

Grey-headed bearded walked before, with wands
blue, and green:

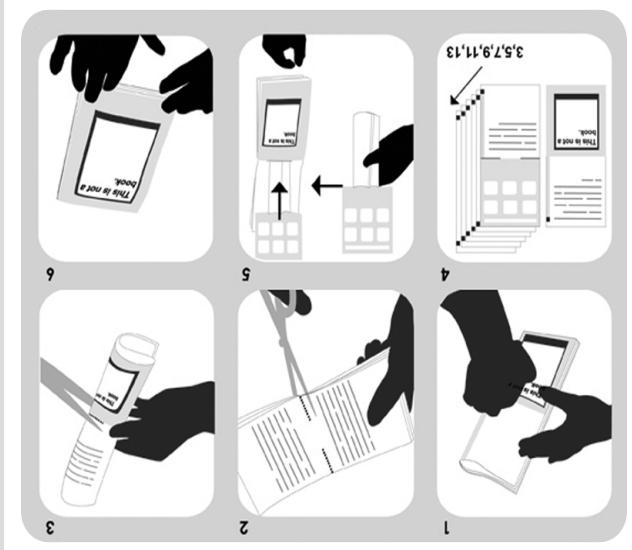

The children walking two and two, in red, and clean,

Twas on a holy Thursday, their innocent faces
Every child may joy to hear.

THE SHEPHERD

How sweet is the shepherd's sweet lot!
From the morn to the evening he strays;
He shall follow his sheep all the day,
And his tongue shall be filled with praise.

For he hears the lambs' innocent call,
And he hears the ewes' tender reply;
He is watchful while they are in peace,
For they know when their shepherd is nigh.

THE ECHOING GREEN

The sun does arise,
And make happy the skies;
The merry bells ring
To welcome the Spring;
The skylark and thrush,
The birds of the bush,
Sing louder around
To the bells' cheerful sound;
While our sports shall be seen
On the echoing green.

Old John, with white hair,
Does laugh away care,
Sitting under the oak,
Among the old folk.

Gave thee such a tender voice,
Softest clothing, woolly, bright;
Gave thee clothing of delight,
By the stream and over the mead;
Gave thee life, and bid thee feed
Does thou know who made thee?
Little lamb, who made thee?

THE LAMB

On the darkening green.
And sport no more seen
Are ready for rest,
Like birds in their nest,
Many sisters and brothers
Round the laps of their mothers
And our sports have an end.
The sun does descend,
No more can be merry:
Till the little ones, weary,
On the echoing green.
In our youth-time were seen
When we all -- girls and boys -
Such, such were the joys
They laugh at our play,
And soon they all say,

Till our grief is fled and gone
He doth sit by us and moan.

Making all the vales rejoice?
Little lamb, who made thee?
Does thou know who made thee?

Little lamb, I'll tell thee;
Little lamb, I'll tell thee:
He is called by thy name,
For He calls Himself a Lamb.
He is meek, and He is mild,
He became a little child.
I a child, and thou a lamb,
We are called by His name.
Little lamb, God bless thee!
Little lamb, God bless thee!

THE LITTLE BLACK BOY

My mother bore me in the southern wild,
And I am black, but O my soul is white!
White as an angel is the English child,
But I am black, as if bereaved of light.

My mother taught me underneath a tree,
And, sitting down before the heat of day,
She took me on her lap and kissed me,
And, pointing to the East, began to say:

'Look on the rising sun: there God does live,

And be like him, and he will then love me.
And then I'll stand and stroke his silver hair,
To lean in joy upon our Father's knee;
I'll shade him from the heat till he can bear
And round the tent of God like lambs we joy,
When I from black, and he from white cloud free,
And thus I say to little English boy.
Thus did my mother say, and kissed me,
And round my golden tent like lambs rejoice..."
Sayings, "Come out from the grove, my love and bear, when our souls have learned the heat to bear but a cloud, and like a shady grove.
And these black bodies and this sunburnt face
That we may learn to bear the beams of love;
And we are put on earth a little space,
Comfort in morning, joy in the noonday.
And gives His light, and gives His heat away,
And flowers and trees and beasts and men receive

Never, never can it be!

And can He who smiles on all
Hear the wren with sorrows small,
Hear the small bird's grief and care,
Hear the woes that infants bear -

And not sit beside the nest,
Pouring pity in their breast,
And not sit the cradle near,
Weeping tear on infant's tear?

And not sit both night and day,
Wiping all our tears away?
O no! never can it be!

Never, never can it be!

He doth give His joy to all:
He becomes an infant small,
He becomes a man of woe,
He doth feel the sorrow too.

Think not thou canst sigh a sigh,
And thy Maker is not by:
Think not thou canst weep a tear,
And thy Maker is not near.

O He gives to us His joy,
That our grief He may destroy:

No, no! never can it be!

An infant groan, an infant fear?

Can a mother sit and hear

Weep, nor be with sorrow filled?

Can a father see his child

And not feel my sorrow's share?

Can I see a falling tear,

And not seek for kind relief?

Can I see another's grief,

I am set to light the round,

While the beetle goes his round:

Follow now the beetle's hum;

Little wanderer, hie thee home!

Who repiled, 'What wailing wight

Do they hear their father sigh?

Now return and weep for me.'

But I saw a glow-worm near,

Pitying, I dropped a tear:

Now they look abroad to see,

Do they hear their father sigh?

Callis the watchman of the night?

I am set to light the ground,

While the beetle goes his round:

Follow now the beetle's hum;

Little wanderer, hie thee home!

Who repiled, 'What wailing wight

Do they hear their father sigh?

Now return and weep for me.'

But I saw a glow-worm near,

Pitying, I dropped a tear:

Now they look abroad to see,

Do they hear their father sigh?

THE BLOSSOM

Merry, merry sparrow!
Under leaves so green
A happy blossom
Sees you, swift as arrow,
Seek your cradle narrow,
Near my bosom.
Pretty, pretty robin!
Under leaves so green
A happy blossom
Hears you sobbing, sobbing,
Pretty, pretty robin,
Near my bosom.

THE CHIMNEY-SWEEPER

When my mother died I was very young,
And my father sold me while yet my tongue
Could scarcely cry 'Weep! weep! weep! weep!'
So your chimneys I sweep, and in soot I sleep.

There's little Tom Dacre, who cried when his head,
That curled like a lamb's back, was shaved; so I said,
'Hush, Tom! never mind it, for, when your head's bare,

So, if all do their duty, they need not fear harm.

And warm:

Though the morning was cold, Tom was happy

And got with our bags and our brushes to work.

And so Tom awoke, and we rose in the dark,

He'd have God for his father, and never want joy.

And the angel told Tom, if he'd be a good boy,

They rise upon clouds, and sport in the wind:

Then naked and white, all their bags left behind,

And wash in a river, and shine in the sun.

Then down a green plain, leaping, laughing, they

And he opened the coffins, and set them all free;

And by came an angel, who had a bright key,

Were all of them locked up in coffins of black.

Jack,

That thousands of sweepers, Dick, Joe, Ned, and

As Tom was asleeping, he had such a sight! -

And so he was quiet, and that very night,

You know that the soot cannot spoil your white hair.'

INFANT JOY

'I have no name;
I am but two days old.'
What shall I call thee?
'I happy am,
Joy is my name.'
Sweet joy befall thee!

Pretty joy!
Sweet joy, but two days old.
Sweet joy I call thee:
Thou dost smile,
I sing the while;
Sweet joy befall thee!

A DREAM

Once a dream did weave a shade
O'er my angel-guarded bed,
That an emmet lost its way
Where on grass methought I lay.

Troubled, wildered, and forlorn,
Dark, benighted, travel-worn,
Over many a tangled spray,
All heart-broke, I heard her say:
'O my children! do they cry,

THE LITTLE BOY LOST

'Father, father, where are you going?
O do not walk so fast!
Speak, father, speak to your little boy,
Or else I shall be lost.'

The night was dark, no father was there,
The child was wet with dew;
The mire was deep, and the child did weep,
And away the vapour flew.

THE LITTLE BOY FOUND

The little boy lost in the lonely fen,
Led by the wandering light,
Began to cry, but God, ever nigh,
Appeared like his father, in white.

He kissed the child, and by the hand led,
And to his mother brought,
Who in sorrow pale, through the lonely dale,
Her little boy weeping sought.

And all the hills are echoed.
The little ones leaped, and shouted, and laughed,
And then go home to bed.'
Well, well, go and play till the light fades away,
And the hills are all covered with sheep.
Besides, in the sky the little birds fly,
And we cannot go to sleep;
No, no, let us play, for it is yet day,
Till the morning appears in the skies.
Come, come, leave off play, and let us away,
And the dews of night arise!
down,
Then come home, my children, the sun is gone
And everything else is still.
My heart is at rest within my breast,
And laughing is heard on the hill,
When voices of children are heard on the green,

NURSE'S SONG

Merrily, merrily we welcome in the year.
Your soft face,
Let me kiss
Your soft wool;
Let me pull

Hover o'er my happy child!
Sweet Sleep, angel mild,
Weave thy brows an infant crown!
Sweet Sleep, with soft down
By happy, silent, moony beams!

Sweet dreams of pleasant streams
O'er my lovely infant's head!
Sweet dreams, form a shade
When the painted birds laugh in the shade,
With their sweet round mouths sing 'Ha ha hei!',
When Mary and Susan and Emily
And the grasshopper laughs in the merry scene,
When the meadows laugh with lively glee,
And the green hill laughs with the noise of it;
When the air does laugh with our merry wit,
And the dimpling stream runs laughing by;
Joy,
When the green woods laugh with the voice of

LAUGHING SONG

As I guard o'er the fold.'

SPRING

Sound the flute!
Now it's mute!
Birds delight,
Day and night,
Nightingale,
In the dale,
Lark in sky, -
Merrily,
Merrily, merrily to welcome in the year.

Little boy,
Full of joy;
Little girl,
Sweet and small;
Cock does crow,
So do you;
Merry voice,
Infant noise;
Merrily, merrily to welcome in the year.

Little lamb,
Here I am;
Come and lick
My white neck;

Shall shine like the gold,
My bright mane for ever
For, washed in life's river,
Graze after thee, and weep.
Or think on Him who bore thy name,
And now beside thee, bleating lamb,
I can lie down and sleep,
From our immortal day.

Is driven away
And, by His health, sickness,
Saying: 'Wrath by His meekness,
And walking round the fold:
And pitying the tender cries,
Shall flow with tears of gold:
And there the lion's ruddy eyes
New worlds to inherit.
Receive each mild spirit,
The angels, most heedful,
But, if they rush dreadful,
And keep them from the sheep.
Seeking to drive their thirst away,
They pitying stand and weep;
When wolves and tigers howl for prey,
And sit down by their bed.

Sweet smiles, in the night
Hover over my delight!
Sweet smiles, mother's smiles,
All the livelong night beguiles.

Sweet moans, dovelike sighs,
Chase not slumber from thy eyes!
Sweet moans, sweeter smiles,
All the dovelike moans beguiles.

Sleep, sleep, happy child!
All creation slept and smiled.
Sleep, sleep, happy sleep,
While o'er thee thy mother weep.

Sweet babe, in thy face
Holy image I can trace;
Sweet babe, once like thee
Thy Maker lay, and wept for me:

Wept for me, for thee, for all,
When He was an infant small.
Thou His image ever see,
Heavenly face that smiles on thee!

Smiles on thee, on me, on all,
Who became an infant small;
Infant smiles are His own smiles;

There God is dwelling too.
Where Mercy, Love, and Pity dwell,
In heathen, Turk, or Jew.
And all must love the human form,
Love, Mercy, Pity, Peace.
Prays to the human form divine:
That prays in his distress,
Then every man, of every clime,
And Peace the human dress.
Pity, a human face;
And Love, the human form divine:
And Mercy has a human heart;
For Mercy has a human heart;
Is man, His child and care.
And Mercy, Pity, Peace, and Love,
Is God our Father dear?
For Mercy, Pity, Peace, and Love,
Return their thankfulness.
And to these virtues of delight
All pray in their distress,
To Mercy, Pity, Peace, and Love,
Heaven and earth to peace beguiles.
